ASSURING MISSION SUCCESS

November 17–19 San Diego Convention Center

Mark Hall

Mark Hall

Director, Information Assurance Policy and Strategy
Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense

Mark Hall has served more than 20 years supporting the Department of Defense's (DoD) information assurance mission in a variety of capacities. As the director of Information Assurance (IA) Policy and Strategy, he is responsible for ensuring a secure DoD network architecture is designed and maintained through a variety of IA programs and initiatives supported by appropriate enterprise security policies. Hall is also the director of the International IA Program for the U.S. DoD. In this capacity he is responsible for military IA outreach, policy and program development, and ensures that DoD has appropriate computer network defense contacts with foreign militaries around the world.

Hall also serves as the DoD co-chair to the National Cyber Response Coordination group and represents DoD interests in the principal inter-agency forum to discuss cyber security issues and respond to a cyber event of national significance.
